I am all for this.

It is a necessary and significant first step In removing regulatory barriers to more diverse and affordable housing choices which are essential If we are to grow and thrive as a community and achieve an increased measure of socio-economic diversity.

It is though only a first step in what I hope will be a process that proceeds one step at a time, and that it will pave the way for and will be followed in short order by other changes to the Regulations pointing in the same direction.
